ELIO'S LITTLE DISCOVERIES

Two Maps to the Pond

연못으로 가는 두 장의 지도

숲 · 함께 읽기 · 12장면

Elio and Bori wanted to meet at the pond. Each drew a map for the other. Elio used a tall oak tree and a stone wall. Bori used a berry bush and a flat rock.

The two maps looked different. One had a long straight line. The other had a wiggly line. “We cannot both be right,” said Bori. Elio folded his map. “Let’s walk and see.”

They started at the garden gate. Elio pointed to the stone wall. “There! My map shows this.” Bori pointed to a row of berry bushes beside it. “And my map shows these.”

They followed the path. At the oak tree, Elio’s straight line made sense. Under the same tree, Bori’s wiggly line matched the curve around the roots. “Both lines are here,” said Bori.

They came to the flat rock. Bori’s map said to turn there. Elio’s map said to keep going until the wall ended. They tried both ways and met at the same corner.

“On my map the wall is one long line, so I drew the path straight beside it. You drew the rock, so your path turns.” Bori nodded. “We watched different things.”

At the pond, they compared the maps again. Elio had drawn the tall things he could see. Bori had drawn the low things she could see. The path was the same, but their eyes had caught different clues.

“So both maps are right,” said Elio. “But mine leaves out your berries.” “And mine leaves out your wall,” said Bori. They spread the maps side by side on the grass.

A leaf landed on Elio’s map and covered the blank space beside his line. He lifted it. “My map has nothing here,” he said. “Yours has the berries.” “Then let’s draw one map with both,” said Bori.

They drew a new map together. Elio added the tall oak and the wall. Bori added the berries and the flat rock. Their two lines joined at the pond.

“Which map is best?” asked Bori. Elio looked at the old maps and the new one. “The new one shows more,” he said. “But both old maps were true.” They walked home together, past the wall, the oak, the berries, and the rock.

함께 발견해요

읽기 전

표지의 두 장의 지도와 연못을 함께 봐요. 같은 곳을 그려도 왜 다르게 보일 수 있는지 편하게 예상해 봐요.

함께 읽을 때

엘리오의 곧은 길과 보리의 구불구불한 길을 손가락으로 따라가 봐요. 두 지도에 나오는 나무, 울타리, 바위, 풀을 실제 길에서 하나씩 확인해요.

생각 나누기

두 지도 중 하나만 맞다고 생각했는데, 마지막에 왜 둘 다 맞았나요? 두 친구가 서로 다른 것을 본 까닭을 그림과 원문에서 찾아봐요.

생활에서

집에서 연못이나 놀이터까지 가는 길을 종이에 그려 보고, 다른 사람이 그린 길과 비교해 봐요. 잘 그려야 하는 숙제는 아니에요.

관점과 근거를 비교하는 긴 함께 읽기 원고 초안이에요. 독립 읽기 인증이나 관점 이해 평가가 아니에요.
