ELIO’S LITTLE DISCOVERIES

Read It Again?

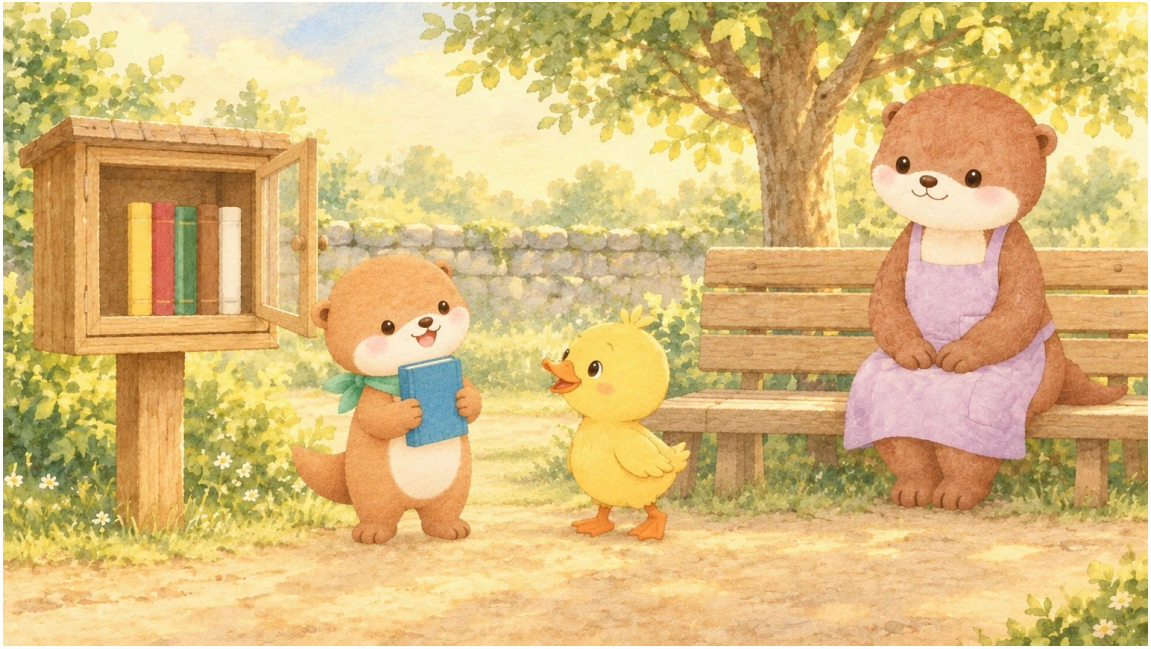

또 읽을까?

At the end of the lane stood a little wooden book box on a post, with a glass door and a bench beside it. Anyone could borrow a book, as long as they brought one back.

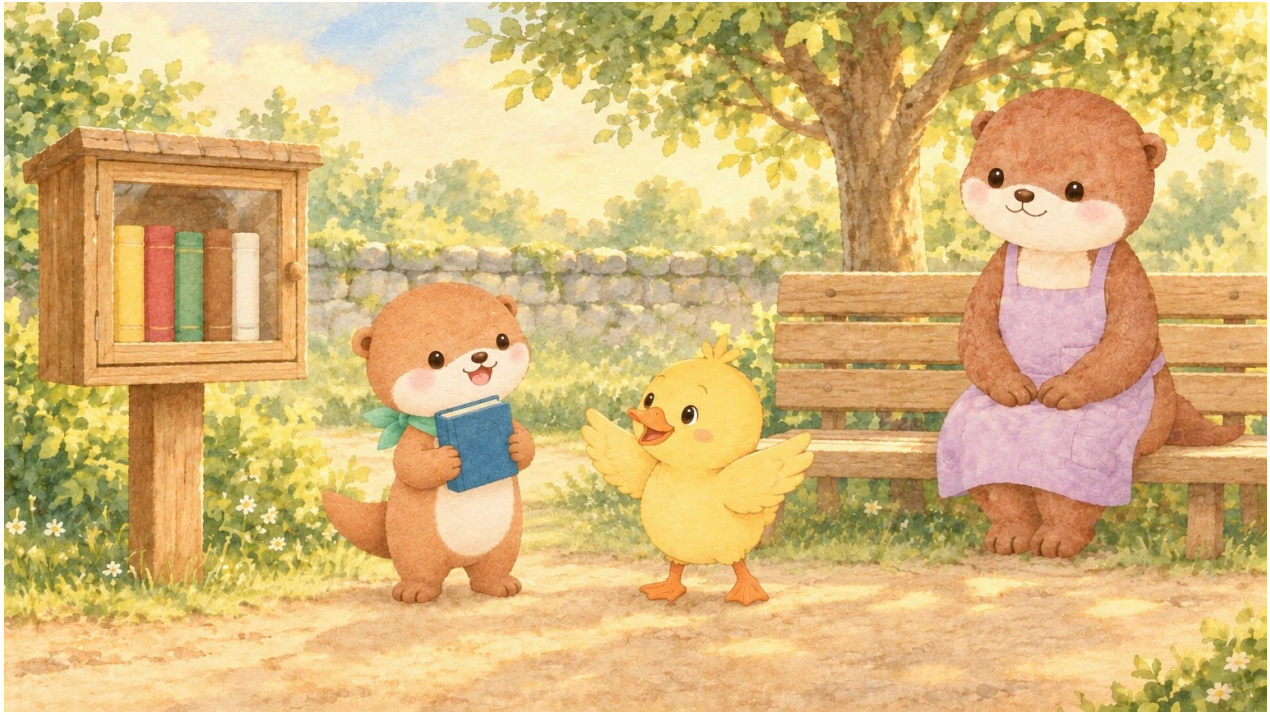

Elio swung the door open and took out the old blue book. “This one again!” he said. He had read it four times already. Bori looked at him. “Again? There are five other books in there.”

“Every time I read it, I find something new,” said Elio. “Last time, I noticed a tiny bridge on the first page. I had never spotted it before.”

Bori tilted her head. “But a new book can surprise you,” she said. “You can’t be surprised by a story when you already know the end.”

“I like knowing what will happen,” said Elio. “It feels like visiting an old friend.” “And I like not knowing,” said Bori. “It feels like opening a present.”

Mum was resting on the bench, listening. “Have either of you tried it the other way?” she asked. Elio and Bori looked at each other. Neither of them had.

So they swapped. Bori chose a book for Elio, a yellow one he had never opened. Elio gave Bori his old blue book. They each took one end of the bench and began.

The next afternoon, Elio sighed over the yellow book. “I don’t know anyone in the book yet,” he said. “It’s like walking into a room full of strangers.”

Bori was laughing at the blue book. “The little fox is very funny!” Then her face changed. “Wait. I want to read this part again,” she said, and turned back a page.

Elio looked up. “You’re reading it again!” Bori laughed. “Only this page. The first time, I read it quickly to find out what happens. The second time, I noticed how the fox felt.”

A few days later, Elio shut the yellow book with a happy sigh. “Halfway through, the strangers turned into friends,” he said. “Now I want to read it again.” Mum smiled. “So a new book can become an old friend.”

“And an old book can feel new,” said Bori, “when another reader shows you why they love it.” They put both books back in the box, side by side, for the next reader.

함께 발견해요

읽기 전

표지의 작은 책 상자를 보고, 아이가 여러 번 읽은 책과 아직 펼치지 않은 책을 하나씩 떠올려 봐요.

함께 읽을 때

엘리오와 보리가 각자의 이유를 비유로 말하는 장면(오랜 친구, 선물)에서 잠깐 멈추고 그 뜻을 함께 이야기해요.

생각 나누기

책을 바꿔 읽은 뒤 두 사람은 무엇을 새로 알게 되었나요? 어느 쪽이 맞는지 정하지 않고 각자의 근거를 찾아봐요.

생활에서

다시 읽고 싶은 책 한 권과 새로 읽고 싶은 책 한 권을 골라 봐요. 많이 읽어야 한다는 약속은 하지 않아요.

관점과 근거를 비교하는 긴 함께 읽기 원고 초안이에요. 독립 읽기 인증이나 관점 이해 평가가 아니에요.
